from a visit of three weeks in Za-boy is one of San Antonio's High School lads, and he writes that he will be awfully glad when his time

Says he wants to go to another real cently he went to a dance in the sult in any way to the benefit of the town, be present and discuss it member the date, Monday, May 1st, and make it a point to be present.

The Hondo Lumber Company has just completed a concrete water trough in its camp yard that will be rendering service long after the present owners have amassed fortunes and retired from business. The old wooden trough was becoming somewhat decrepit from age, and rather than build a new trough they concluded to build for all time to come, so they have constructed a cement poll or trough. The new water receptacle is of between 300 or 400 gallons capacity and is a decided improvement over the old trough where thousands of stock have quenched their thirst in the days gone by.

MONDAY NIGHT. DON'T MISS
IT. At the AUDITORIUM, 8 p. m.

Did you say, GOOD SHOW? Wait and "TOMFOOLERY." Then you'll say, SOME REAL SHOW!! MON-DAY NIGHT, at the AUDITORIUM.

Friday was the second anniversary of Hondo cow's dipping day and from early dawn till late in the afternoon cattle were on their unwilling journey to their "old swimming hole."

If the same ratio of in- and outbound shipments can be kept for a year as they were the past week, then our people should be the most prosperous in the whole state. Inbound shipments for the past week consisted of but one car load while outbound shipments amounted to eleven carloads, as follows: Outbound, 4 cars corn, 2 of cotton, 2 of hay, and 3 of cattle; while one car of cement was the only inbound shipment.

Surveyor Haass spent Tuesday and Wednesday over in the Noonan vicinity locating boundaries preparatory for the spudding in of a new oil well. This location will be on the Henry Mangold farm on the S. M.
Cunningham lease, approximately one and one-half miles south of the Christilles well. From oil showings in the Christilles well the promoters of this new well feel very confident of making a successful strike. The finding of an oil field in Medina county would mean much to every person in the county, and all honest promoters should have the sympathy and encouragement of all our people.

The Yancey Oil and Gas Company spudded in their No. 1 Thursday, and after going down some thirty or so feet encountered a hard rock. The barbecue that was planned by the company was also given, but on account of the muddy roads and the threatening weather the crowds were not as large as it otherwise would have been. The people of this section will watch the progress of this new well with great interest, and its promoters have the best wishes of all our people for the successful completion of a great oil well. Their success means great things for this entire section. In fact, it would be an impossible task to compute the value to our entire population of a great oil strike in the Yancey field.
There is but little doubt that the oil is there; the tapping of it is the only problem.

The mutilated body of a newly born female negro baby was found in the negro settlement up on the Hondo about March 15th. The body was first discovered by a man, and indications were that the crime had been committed but a short time before he discovered the body, or rather the trunk, as the head had been severed from the body by some sharp instrument. In the evening of the same day some school children also discovered the trunk. The sheriff's department was not notified of the find for several days, and when representatives of the department visited the location the trunk had been removed and no track of it could be found. As several persons living up in the settlement were before the recent grand jury it is presumed that body made a thorough investigation of the affair, but what it developed or whether anyone was billed for the crime only time will unfold. The best element of the colored people living in the settlement are very much wrought up over the occurrence and promise every assistance in unearthing the parentage of the baby and fixing responsibility for its destruction.

E. J. Murray of Hondo, inspector in charge of tick eradication in dina county, was in San Antonio yesterday, reporting that the work progressing all right in his territory. Plenty of rain has made fine pasture and stock water is plentiful, the task of dipping is made much easier.—Cattle Clatter in Sunday Express.

As the result of a little advertising rat-dog puppies for sale Mr.

bia. This ad appeared first in our

The cry of hard times and scar-local postoffice up to Monday sold a total of $5,200 United States Treasury Certificates for the month of April. If times were normal it would be interesting to speculate as to what amount these government certificates would be in the possession of our people. Perhaps they would have taken the whole issue and perhaps in other portions of the country they would have had to find some other investment for their idle money.

County School Superintendent N. Saathoff returned Sunday from conference of educators held in Austin last week-end, and if such a conference were possible, is more enthusiastic over his chosen work than ever before. A large number of the leading educators of the state were present and a wide range of subjects pertaining to the betterment of our schools were discussed and the professors of the schools to be greatly benefited as the result of the conference. While over there he availed himself of the opportunity of visiting daughter, Miss Irene, a student of the Southwestern University, Geotown. He reports all the students from Hondo in that institution and happy and apparently making good use of their educational opportunities. He also says lots of crops have fallen in that section, but crops are hardly as good as in Medina.

Two school boys from Moore yearling each on the San Antonio market yesterday at prices knocked the regular schedule.
These boys had raised these yearlings on the famous "baby beef" plan, did it as part of a school project.
The boys came to market with yearlings, via truck, and were a happy and deserving pair. W. M. diger was the name of one; H.
McNeal the name of the other.
yearling of the first named weighed in at 550 pounds; that of the second named weighing in at 700 pounds.
The first one received $51.35 for yearling; the second one received $55.30. The price paid in each instance was $7.90, which was above the recognized high for yearlings. But they were beauties, commission men termed them, above the standard set for the so-called best.—Cattle Clatter in Today's Express.

A traveling salesman, en route from Bandera to Hondo had an experience that he will remember some time to come. Arriving in the Hondo he found it rising fast. The heavy rains on its upper reach Thinking he could make it across he drove in and was about to make safe crossing when his front wheel sank in the ground. Not being able to make further progress he secured a horse and tried to pull the car safely, but as his motor had come submerged from the rising water and without this assistance the car could not be moved.
This means of rescue had to be abandoned. As a Ford always wants to be on the go this particular one started on a journey down stream and butted up against an obstruction some half mile down stream.
After the receding of the water, the car, with the top gone, the wheel shield demolished and the upholstery somewhat moist and the back seat losing rough contact with flooring of the car was rescued and brought to the Yantis garage for repairs. W. men thought it would be ready for service by Thursday evening.

Film is the basis of tartar.

It holds food substance

AFTER DROUTH.

Across the hills I saw them come
To save the famished grain,
A regiment too long delayed—
The ragged hosts of rain.
Their bayonets were slanting now
Against the darkened sky;
I heard the thunder's cannonade
When the blue ranks marched by.
They stormed into the valley. Hark!
That sound of silver feet!
The land cried for deliverance,
And, oh, the rain was sweet!
They swept through dusty highways,
Far
Beyond the wide, parched plain;
And everyone leaned out to greet The tattered hosts of rain.

urday evening Post.

One of the interesting developments of the senatorial campaign is that all of the other candidates have come out squarely on Mayfield's plank for restoring the powers of the state railroad commissions over intra-state railway traffic and reducing railway freight rates. Now isn't that unkind of them to all get on Earl's one little plank, seeing as it is all he has?

A prominent business man in an East Texas town has come out in a half-page advertisement in his local paper to the effect that he will not help any more boot-leggers out of trouble either by signing their bonds or giving them advice. Is this an effort to stand from under or to bull the price of the boot-leggers' present stock? They do say the supply is out-running the demand.

One of the greatest draw-backs to the rapid development agriculturally of South and West Texas has been the methods employed in settling it with farmers. Generally a man from the North or East, unfamiliar with conditions surrounding his new home and often times not even a practical farmer at his old home, was sold raw land for about one-third down—which usually meant about all the ready money he had—and then left to pioneer, without working capital, practical experience or the consolation of neighbors with whom to counsel. As is to be expected, more often than not the experiment proves a tragic failure, and several generations of farmers come and go before one becomes permanently and satisfactorily fixed to the land. But a new day is dawning, at least for that section of Texas situated along the lines of the San Antonio and Aransas Pass Railroad. Under the indefatigable leadership of that road's Farm and Immigration agent, H. M.
Madison, plans have been worked out whereby many farmers will sell their raw lands with no cash payment down, provided the purchaser at once improves the land, and will give the farmer a long time in paying for the land. Other land owners are co-operating to the extent of doing the improving, clearing the land, erecting bungalows and putting on other necessary improvements and then selling for a small cash payment and with long time credits to farmers who propose to live on the land. And one Chamber of Commerce is co-operating to the extent of providing a large revolving fund for the purpose of buying raw land, improving it and selling to farmer-settlers on long time. The whole proposition, according to Mr. Madison, is to make it as easy as possible for a farmer to acquire a farm of his own and make the farm pay for itself, while the farmer and his family are at the same time supplied with the comforts and conveniences of a modern home and surrounded by congenial and forward-looking, contented neighbors.
What a happy contrast to the old system of greed, grab and exploitation!
What a benefactor will he who can put the plan across be to his state and to future hosts of prosperous, contented farmers.

As a matter of military necessity during the late "devil-sent" war, this country resorted to the lawless expediency of fixing a price on certain farm commodities. This precedent, it seems, is being pleaded by some of those who should be wiser for a repetition of the folly. In a recent speech by Hon. Clarence Ousley in futherance of his candidacy for the United States Senate, he takes the following heavy fall out of one of his opponents: "Mr. Thomas advocates the fixing of farm prices by congress or some agency of congress, and cites the precedent of the war emergency act of a guaranteed price of wheat. I would be interested to have him make that proposal to an audience of Western wheat farmers if I didn't fear that they might mob him. The wheat farmers know that the minimum price of $2 became the maximum price, and that but for the fixed price wheat would have sold much higher. I was in Washington at the time, and I protested to the price-fixing committee that it was unjustly taking money out of the pockets of the wheat growers, but it was moved by the demand of the great consuming public for cheap bread, regardless of the fate of the producer. In like manner the hog raisers of the corn belt, the potato raisers of the North and the cotton farmers of the South justly complained of Mr. Hoover's fixed prices for hogs, potatoes and cotton seed. When prices are fixed by law they will be fixed low in the interest of the majority consumers against the minority producers. The agricultural bloc in congress may be depended upon to prevent any such disaster to agriculture, but it behooves the farmers and business men of Texas to hesitate before committing themselves by their votes to such economic folly."

snatched the infant of a Swiss farm-of its fall and the baby descended spoil the story is that the condor is

HEROES OF THE PAST REVEALED AGAIN.

From The Huajillo Leaf.

As we gaze upon this picture of our past heroes of football, we realize that we shall never forget their deeds of glory and great achievements which have brightened the fame of old Hondo High. Each name brings back some successful play, and, as a whole, a wonderful and complete victory.

The season of '21-'22 marked one of the most successful in the history of Hondo High, and we are sure the memory of it shall linger with us always. Never doubting the results, this team plunged into the fight, and usually came out the victor, having been defeated but twice out of eight games. The co-operative spirit between the boys and their coach determined their success, and we saw it displayed in every game.

This little but strong team defeated the following teams: Lytle, Sabi-nal, Pearsall, Del Rio, Devine and Eagle Pass, and had she succeeded in defeating Corpus Christi, she would have obtained the championship of section 11. The last game with Corpus closed the football season, yet memory's picture of the old days will always remain as vivid as ever.

FLETCHERIZED FARM FACTS

By
Fletcher Davis.

Don't neglect the side-lines on the farm. The side-line—to repeat what has been said before—sometimes beats the "main chance," if one knows how to take advantage of the side-line.

Careful students of farm and rural economics are firmly of the opinion that a good garden, when made to include the family's supply of potatoes of both kinds and dried beans and peas, may be made to produce more than fifty per cent of the family's food supply. And yet the garden is a side-line on most farms.

An abundance of fresh, wholesome vegetables in season not only contributes thus materially to the family's food supply—which is man's first natural want—and serve as a useful means of maintaining the family health, but a surplus can generally be disposed of while fresh on the local market and thus add materially to the cash income of the farm.

And whether or not the family can consume all of the garden products grown while in season, and whether or not the product is such as to lend itself readily to storage, as do potatoes, or drying, as do beans and peas, there is little of the crop that needs to go to waste. A steam pressure cooker is now easily within reach of the purse of the average farmer; they are simple and safe—with the exercise of average intelligence—and make it possible for the farmer to preserve in a most palatable and wholesome condition what might otherwise go to waste.

Canned and dried fruits and vegetables constitute a considerable item in the living-expense bill of the average American family. The farmer who can store his larder with home grown, home-canned viands not only gets these products at their first cost, thus saving the huge profits of several dealers and high transportation charges, but can divert the entire amount that would go out of the farm income for their purchase to other needful purposes.

There are said to have been 129,934 farms in Texas at the time the 1920 census was taken that did not have a hog. Yet bacon and lard are an absolute necessity in every one's kitchen, save the orthodox Jew. Most farms could profitably care for a brood sow, but none can be entirely without a pig without paying the penalty in an economic loss. The kitchen slops, the garden waste, a little grain, plus a little care and labor to raise a pig—just one pig—means a supply of pork in season and a year's supply of pure, wholesome lard at almost no appreciable cost. Why do 129,934 Texas farms neglect this important and highly profitable side-line?

In the writer's experience as an Institute lecturer for out State Department of Agriculture, there came to his attention the case of a farmer who had attempted to grow cotton year after year until he had fallen so deeply into debt that he could no longer secure credit for supplies and was in desperate straits. A generous banker, who would not risk further advances on a crop mortgage, staked him to the purchase of a few good milk cows on the condition that he join a creamery association and market his cream through the co-operative association. That farmer took care of his cows, paid his store account as he went with cash from his weekly cream checks and made his crop without going into debt. A few dairy cows as a side-line proved this farmer's salvation. The possibilities of a cream can be worth the investigation of any man who lives within reach of a shipping station.

Despite the possibilities for profit from a few dairy cows properly cared for, not to mention the value of milk and milk products as a part of the dietary, there were 169,190 farms in Texas in 1919 that did not keep a cow and 191,142 farms on which no butter was manufactured. Why this strange neglect?

People with a pride in Texas have been disappointed in the low comparative standing of the state in the matter of poultry and poultry products. Small wonder that the aggregate production of poultry should be so little in proportion when there were 154,687 farms in Texas, or 35 per cent on which no fowls of any kind were raised in 1919. There is no other side-line on the farm that costs less or produces bigger returns proportionally than poultry; there is nothing that has less excuse for being neglected.

Neither is there a side-line in which the beginner can start with less capital nor is there anything in which there is less excuse for the mongrel

Here we are, Catholic and Protestant, Gentile and Jew!
We have been here a long time. We have lived together in harmony. We are citizens of Bee county. Each of us—Catholic and Protestant, Gentile and Jew—has the greatest respect for the other.

We have traded together these many years.

We have gone to church together. We have gone to war together.

We have bought Liberty Bonds together.

We have served the Red Cross together.

We have gone to funerals together. We have attended weddings together.

We have cried together. We have laughed together.

Our Imperial Wizard (self-styled) over in Atlanta, Georgia, steps in and proclaims himself Emperor of an Invisible Empire.

He tells the Protestants that the Catholics are seeking a union of the Church and State.

He tells the Gentiles the Jews are trying to gather unto themselves all the money of the world.

He is talking to deaf ears. A few listened for a spell. They paid unto his unholy coffers a certain fee.

It was money well spent. They will return to their former friendships, former confidences, better for having strayed from the fold.

Finally, they will have learned a lesson worth many times the cost.

Time will rectify their error and they will find a tolerant, charitable reception committee when they come "home."

It is an ill wind that blows no good.—Beeville Bee.

From The Huajillo Leaf.

We sigh as we realize that our last hope for a holiday passed with April 21. This day, the anniversary of the defeat of Santa Anna and his large army by General Sam Houston's small forces, should mean quite a great deal to every citizen of Texas, but it seems that less is thought of the significance of this holiday than of any of the others that we observe.

To most of us, it means merely a day that we will not have to work or go to school, and usually, a good time for a picnic; and we forget the bravery, the daring deeds, and the suffering of that little band of true and loyal Texans who made this day one to be remembered, and who made Texas independence a reality rather than a mere declaration.

And now that our holidays and picnics are over, let's recall some of the things that should be remembered about April 21. The Battle of San Jacinto meant that, with Santa Anna and his army all of Mexico went down in defeat before the few brave patriots of Texas; that the inhabitants of Texas were free from the tyrannic rule and the oppression of the Mexican government; that Texas could and would defend herself and the rights of her people; that the people of Texas had made the Declaration of Independence of March 2 a reality; and that the Texans were now free to rule themselves, or to become a part of the great United States that most of them had come from, and enjoy her protection and prosperity. We are all very glad that they chose to become a part of the United States. Next year, along with our thoughts of holidays and picnics, we want to think of the men who gave April 21 the name San Jacinto Day and caused it to be a legal holiday.

Henry Ford says a kindly word for the young people in a current magazine. "They'll settle down," is the general conclusion.

It is a fact that they always have. The young people of every generation are more or less of a problem to their elders. And in every generation there are a few of the elders who are sure, from what they see around them, that the human race is going to the dogs.

—so many boys are wasting the golden hours that will never come again, so many girls filling their heads and hearts with nonsense.

Those things have been observed in every generation. Yet for some reason the human race has never quite come to the ruin predicted for it. Enough boys have applied themselves to the important things, enough girls have laid the foundation for useful and beautiful womanhood, to keep predominant the virtues on which civilization rests. The loafers and the wasters and the foolish, for all they are pressed so frequently upon our notice, are in the minority.

And so Henry Ford's cheering conclusion is worth talking about. It is worth while for the elders to break in upon the strident notes of criticism occasionally to assert the faith they have in their children.—Ex.

LEARN TO THINK.

The reason that Napoleon was licked at Waterloo was because he did not know himself. He lost confidence in himself because he did not know his strength and ability. Many worthwhile people are being licked every day because they do not know themselves; they do not know their capacity; they do not know all the things they could bring to bear to make their life's work a success.

Emerson says: "The walls of rude minds are scrawled all over with facts, with thoughts." Unless we have the skill to classify them we are practically in a dormant state so far as mental progress is concerned. We call the classifying of facts and imaginative thoughts thinking, and the hardest task in the world is to think.

Toiling without intelligence will always leave you hopelessly at a standstill. Know your capabilities and learn to develop them.

Consider that you are endowed with many component parts that we call reason, judgment, memory, strength, ability, hope, faith—things that belong to the body and soul, but you must realize that these different qualities must be trained. You must take cognizance of these wonderful gifts that belong to you and train them to work with you and for you.

Only by training your capabilities can you make them serve you to the end that your work and your life will be more pleasant and more profitable.—The American Home.

Each Knew it Was the Other.

A well known novelist had the misfortune to be buttonholed by two loquacious ladies as he was boarding a train. He soon grew tired of their rapid fire of questions and gushing comments. Presently the train passed into a tunnel. The novelist raised his hand and kissed it quite audibly. When the light returned the two ladies regarded each other icily. After that silence reigned.—Exchange.

A great many people confuse morality with legality. With them anything that is legally right is morally right, vice versa. This is not true. A thing may be legally right, yet morally wrong, and on the contrary a thing may be morally right and legally wrong. A man has a right to work and a right not to work so long as he can live without working and not be a burden on society. That statement is legally sound, but is not morally so. A man physically able has no moral right to refuse to contribute to production when production is essential to the common good. Law is frequently one thing and morals another, though they should coincide more frequently. A man may have a legal right to take from a poor widow her last cow and thus deprive her children of life, but he has no moral right to do so. He may have a moral right to take a drink of wine in his own home, but he has no legal right to do so. He may have a moral right to keep his place of business closed on Saturday and keep it open on Sunday for the transaction of business, but he has no legal right to do so. Moral rights and legal rights are at sword's points, and a set of professional reformers are trying to make legal rights superior to moral rights, and this is bringing chaos to the world.—Alpine Valanche.

The Oldest Map in the World.

Just part of a skull, two molar teeth and a thigh bone pieced together they made—what? One of the most perplexing mysteries in the study of human history.

Were these the remains of an ape-like man who lived 500,000 years ago?

Scientists believe that they were; they call him the "Dawn Man," and out of the record embedded in the rocks they have reconstructed the conditions of his life. How he killed his food, tore the raw flesh from the bones; how he married and fought and died! How little by little he clawed and clubbed his way up to mastery over the beasts. It is a fascinating, gripping story, but it is only one of a thousand stories that stir your blood in this greatest book of modern times.

H. G. WELLS' "Outline of History"

Now Offered You at One-Third the Original Price

A history that goes back 100,000 years—that traces man's rude beginnings 500,000 years ago—that follows him down through the ages to the Babes of Babynodder, the Egypt of Cleopatra, the France of Napoleon, the America of today, through the Great War and on into the future United States of the World—that gives ALL history as one story—that is Wells'.

Not only the history of the world, but the science of the world; the outstanding literature of the world; the philosophy of the world—a vast panorama of the world's past, present and future.

And The Review of Reviews Too

Wells begins with the dawn of time; before there were men; before there were even reptiles. In broad, magnificent strokes he paints the picture, bringing you straight down to 1919. Alexander the Great; the Crusades; the Renaissance; the American Revolution; the American Civil War; the American Empire; the American Republic; the American Union; the American People; the American Future.

And where Wells stops the Review of Reviews takes up the story. It is the history of the past; the Review of Reviews records and interprets the history of the world today. It is fitting that these two should be read together. By reading them you are able to offer you an educational course such as you get at no school in the land.

Parson-Cosgrove
 Earl Parson and Miss Sallie Cosgrove were married at the bride's home on middle Verde last Saturday afternoon, Rev. R. F. Curl officiating. After the ceremony the happy pair left for San Antonio and Rocksprings on a bridal trip, and when they return will make their home on West Verde. They are excellent young people and the New Era joins their many friends in wishing them much joy and happiness. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Cosgrove and was raised in this county. The groom formerly lived at Hondo, but for some time has been ranching in this county.

Ernest Haby, who is attending St. Louis College at San Antonio, came to spend Easter with his mother, Mrs. Henry Haby.

Leo Mandry and family, San Antonio, were here this week visiting Mrs. Mandry's parents, Captain and Mrs. Ben Batto.

CAMP VERDE
 B. T. Killough of Center Point and Otto Weltner of Camp Verde spent several days at Medina Lake last week. They assert the fishing was fair and they claim they brought back enough for their families, but a man at the lake who saw their catch claims the fish will not be missed in the lake.

Otto Weltner, wife and children, and the children of A. V. Pue and wife of Bandera enjoyed an Easter egg hunt at the Charles de Montel home last Sunday.

Stuart Haby spent last Sunday with friends at Castroville.

Joe Vilemain of Pipe Creek was here Tuesday and renewed his subscription to the New Era. Mr. Vilemain is returning from Kerrville where he had taken mohair from the Webster ranch. He informs us that the mohair brought 37 1-2 cents per pound.

A happy and sumptuous birthday dinner was enjoyed on Wednesday last week at the home of Lee Monahan, below Bandera, when his good wife prepared a big birthday feast for the lucky Lee, and invited in a number of friends and relatives, among them being Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Hay and daughter, Hazel, Mrs. George Hay, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Hay and daughter, Orene. Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hay passed through town Thursday enroute to their ranch above Medina, and the genial ranchman looked as contented and well fed as a pig who had just gorged himself on pudding. He said it was a most enjoyable event.

Last week there appeared in the ad of J. H. Burns, a hustling merchant of Tarpley, a statement to the effect that during the five years that he had been in business in that thrifty village he has entered on his books less than $75 which he does not consider absolutely good. Mr. Burns has an extensive credit business, and the fact that his possible loss has not been greater speaks well for the honesty of those Tarpley people, and is a record that any community should be proud of.

The New Era editor and J. R. Price went most of the day last Sunday with Capt. W. D. (Seco) Smith at Medina, and secured a lot of interesting data from that grand old frontiersman for publication in J. M. Hunter's forthcoming "Pioneer History of Bandera County." Captain Smith has a beautiful location just this side of Medina, his home being situated on a high elevation overlooking the valley. He is now in his 86th year, hale and hearty, and devotes his attention to his growing crops. His orchard promises an abundant yield this year, particularly his crop of Haught berries give promise of a heavy yield. In that happy home, where Mrs. Smith presides with such grace and dignity, we were accorded the real hospitality that characterizes the homes of all the old pioneers, and we greatly enjoyed our visit. Captain Smith has lived in Bandera since 1856. He has seen the wilderness invaded by savage Indians and lawless men develop into a land of happiness and prosperous, contented people, and he has had an active part in the great changes that have been wrought. He was a boon companion and bosom friend of that great frontier character, "Bigfoot Wallace," and knew all the old frontiersmen of renown. His life story is full of thrills, and every chapter reads like a romance. He is now spending his declining years in peaceful enjoyment of his quiet home life, surrounded by his children, grandchildren and friends who have known him so long and esteem and honor him as one of the patriarchs of Israel.

Gus Britsch, who ranches down on West Verde, was a visitor at the New Era sanctum Monday and dropped a dollar into the printer's itching palm. Mr. Britsch says range conditions have greatly improved since the recent rains.

HUAJILLO LEAF WILL CONTINUE

From The Huajillo Leaf.
 On April 19 the Junior class held a meeting for the purpose of electing the Huajillo staff for the years 1922-23. The following were elected to office:
 Editor-in-chief, Lucille Hollaway; Assistant Editors, Meda Crow and Marion Davis; Department Editors, Joke Editor, Charles Brucks; Athletic Editors, Clara Filleman and Origen Crow; Society Editor, Meda Crow; Business Managers, Will Earnest Newton and Clara Filleman; Circulation Managers, Oscar Filleman, Bennie Bradley, Lorene Merriman and Stella Mae Willis.

After the staff had been elected the superintendent, J. D. Howell, made a talk to the class on the successful publication of the Huajillo Leaf for the coming year. His talk inspired the frightened Juniors with courage, and they will face the ensuing year of trials with smiling faces and willing hands. These students, eager to plunge into the depths of their work, will probably publish a paper far exceeding those before, for they have an advantage over their inexperienced predecessors. Through-out their history the present Junior class has been closely united, and it is hoped that they will demonstrate their co-operation in putting out a successful school paper next year. Doubtless each member will do his part without shirking, and if they fill their places as the past members have done, the school symbol will be a wonderful success.

WHAT HAPPENED!!

From The Huajillo Leaf.
 They left town early Friday morning. Who did? Why, the Juniors and Seniors, of course! They went to Castroville to spend the day. After an hour's ride the bunch arrived in the little city and immediately located a "sure-enough" stopping place by the river.

An expedition of explorers soon formed, the object of which was to search for water-lilies and other such floral vegetation that beautified the river. A few of the boys fished, but the only thing they could catch were the fish they brought from home. The girls found a pleasant occupation in wading and exploring the mysteries of the "deep."

Twelve o'clock came, and with it the "eats." Gosh, how good it tasted, and how long we ate. Then different parties wandered in different directions, some boat-riding, others climbing cross-hill, and still others lazily sleeping. All the while Mr. Newton shined his car, and caused the death of many an innocent squirrel. The water was termed ice-cold by the boys, but the girls disregarded any such statement, and plunged in. They soon began to shiver and Miss Walker called "time out."

The scraps were then eaten, and with the thought of a perfect day in their minds, the happy crowd returned to their hunting grounds.

POSTAL IMPROVEMENT WEEK IS OBSERVED

May 1 Sees Inaugurated First General Campaign of Kind in Service.

Without the Postal Service, business would languish in a day, and be at a standstill in a week. Public opinion would die of dry rot. Sectional hatred or prejudice only would flourish, and narrow-mindedness thrive.

It is the biggest distinctive business in the world and it comes nearer to the innermost interests of a greater number of men and women than any other institution on earth. No private business, however widespread, touches so many lives so often or sharply; no church reaches into so many souls, flutters so many pulses, has so many human beings dependent on its ministrations.

"Postal Improvement Week" has been set for May 1, by the Postmaster General. This is the first general campaign of its kind in the Postal Service for several decades. Business men and their organizations, large users of the mail, newspapers, in floor pictures, advertisers, and the entire organization of 226,000 postal workers are to be enlisted in this country-wide campaign of interest in postal improvements. Your help is vital. Address your letters plainly with pen or typewriter. Give street address. Spell out name of State, don't abbreviate. Put your return address in the upper left hand corner of envelope (not on the back) and always look at your letter before dropping in the mail to see if it is properly addressed. This care in the use of the mails is for your benefit and speeds up the dispatch and delivery of mail matter. If you have any complaints of poor service make them to your postmaster. He has instructions to investigate them and report to the department.

COURTESY

It sticks in human relations like postage stamps on letters. The POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT expects it to be used by its postmasters and employees in dealing with the public. Help them in its use beginning with POSTAL IMPROVEMENT WEEK, May 1-6, 1922.

THANK YOU

WITHOUT STREET ADDRESS YOUR MAIL IS DELAYED AT OFFICE OF DELIVERY

The Dead Letter Office has been in existence ever since Ben Franklin started our postal service. Even then people addressed mail to Mr. Ezekiel Smithers, "Atlantic Coast," and expected Ben to know just where Zeke lived.

Perhaps they had Zeke's address in letters up in the garret, maybe a chest full of 'em, but then it was easier to let Ben hunt Zeke. Today people are addressing letters to John Smith, New York, N. Y., or Chicago, Ill., thinking Uncle Sam can locate him, which is just as incomplete as was Zeke's address of yore. The Postoffice Department asks you to put the number and street in the address. It helps you.

Trinidad Col.

How do you expect the Postal Clerk to know whether you mean Trinidad, California, or Trinidad, Colorado?

ALWAYS SPELL OUT THE NAME OF THE STATE IN FULL IN THE ADDRESS.

"MORE BUSINESS IN GOVERNMENT"

This apt phrase was used in President Harding's first message to Congress and applies particularly in postal management where postmasters are being impressed with the fact that they are managers of local branches of the biggest business in the world.

HERE COMES A STRANGER!

Let's make our post office look neat. Mr. Postmaster. Straighten up the rural letter box. Mr. Farmer. Tidy up some, Mr. Rural Carrier. First Impressions are lasting. Maybe Mr. Stranger, taking notice of these improvements, will come back, bringing you benefits. Start these with "POSTAL IMPROVEMENT WEEK" May 1-6.

HUMANIZING THE POSTAL SERVICE

"There is no unimportant person or part of our service. It is a total of human units and their co-operation is the key to its success. In its last analysis, postal duties are accommodations performed for our neighbors and friends and should be so regarded, rather than as a hired service performed for an absentee employer."—Postmaster General Hubert Work.

Coming to Hondo Tuesday May the 2nd.

A great opportunity now awaits everybody. The coming of the Rev. Dr. Arthur J. Moore to Hondo will be one of the greatest events of the year. Dr. Moore has kindly consented to come to our city and deliver his most wonderful lecture on "Protestantism's Debt to Revivals." The lecture will be given in the Methodist church auditorium Tuesday, May 2nd, at 8 o'clock p. m. This is an opportunity of a lifetime and you will miss the best yet if you fail to hear Dr. Moore's great lecture. Dr. Moore is now pastor of Travis Park Methodist church of San Antonio, Texas, the largest church in the Southwest. Dr. Moore is a scholar and a gentleman, a man of God, a red-blooded American and a silver-tongued orator; one of the most eloquent speakers in North America. If you hear Dr. Moore you shall never forget it as long as you live, and will always be glad that you took advantage of this wonderful opportunity. If you fail to hear Dr. Moore you will always regret your misfortune. We kindly and cordially invite our Roman friends as well as Protestant to hear Dr. Moore. Remember the date, Tuesday, May 6th, at 8 p. m. Place, Methodist Church.

Admission, FREE! Come early, that you may get a seat. Everybody WELCOME.

George G. Smith, Methodist Minister.

J. R. Dubose was here from Devine Wednesday.

Hugo Reitzer of New Fountain was visiting in San Antonio Tuesday.

Mrs. B. Merriwether returned Thursday from a visit to San Antonio.

A fine boy made his appearance in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Coffey Saturday.

Gus Reininger of New Braunfels was here Monday in the interest of the campaign for equalized taxation.

Don't fail to hear Dr. Arthur J. Moore's lecture next Tuesday evening, May 2nd, in the Church auditorium.

Misses Maggie and Carrie Langfeld and Mattie Koch, all of D'Hanis, were in Hondo Monday, and while in the city favored this office with a very pleasant call.

Miss Hulda Brotze, who has been teaching the McCall school north of town, returned to her home at D'Hanis Monday, her school having closed for the term.

Joe Fohn and son, Leonard, accompanied by J. B. Hill, were here Sunday from San Antonio on business and pleasure. Mr. Fohn is now connected with the A. V. Dully Realty Co. of San Antonio. He reported considerable trading in real estate in San Antonio.

Mrs. Laura Welhausen from Pearisall is here at the bedside of her sister, Mrs. Earl Boon, who has been quite indisposed for the past week. It will be good news to Mrs. Boon's friends, however, to learn that she is convalescent and will doubtless soon again be enjoying good health.

L. W. Burrell of Castroville, veteran livestock man of that section, is visiting in San Antonio for a few days, incident to bringing a car of cattle to market. "Thought I'd just hang around town and visit for a day or two," he said. Mr. Burrell has had a dipping vat on his ranch for seven years and dipped his cattle intermittently all along, just to keep the pest down to a minimum. Now he is dipping on a regular 14-day schedule. Recently when the inspectors came to start him off on official dipping they inspected 305 head in one pasture and found no fever ticks at all. However, on 72 head in another pasture, there were found to be three fever ticks. He says he is glad of a chance to clean up with the whole country doing the same. —Cattle Clatter, in Friday's Express.

MY OVER REPENTING SINNERS AMONG THE ANGELS.

A SERMON

By

Rev. S. C. Swinney

From The Protestant Messenger.

Likewise I say unto you, there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth. —Luke 15:10.

Christ is teaching in Jerusalem. A discourse of plain people is listening. From the temple come companies of Pharisees and Scribes. These cultured aristocrats interrupt Christ with these words, "This man receiveth sinners and eateth with them."

Jesus hangs up before them two beautiful pictures—the lost sheep and the lost piece of money; and over these he writes, "I say unto you, there is joy in heaven in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth." Let us notice—

1. The class represented as being specially excited by the emotion of joy over a sinner's repentance.

The angels of God. I have seen pastors thrilled with joy, mothers, fathers and friends aflame with joy as some dear one has been saved; but who can conceive of the intense joy of the angels over a sinner that repenteth?

The frail casket of the human body cannot sustain itself under the weight of excessive rapture any more than under the burden of excessive grief. We cannot sustain ourselves as the angels can under a mighty pressure of joy. I have read of a Roman matron who fell dead with joy because her son returned unhurt from the awful slaughter of Cana. Talve died of joy while reading the news of the great honors conferred on him by the Roman Senate. Columbus broke down with joy, when he stepped ashore in the West Indies; as he saw the sunrise gilding the banners of Castile, tears of joy streamed down his cheeks, and he fell on his knees and kissed the earth. But who can conceive of the exultation, the ecstasy, the transport of the angels when the prodigal returns to the Father's house and the fattened calf is killed? The question confronts us—

2. Why do the angels rejoice when a sinner repents?

1. Because true repentance culminates in that transformation of heart and life which is the chief glory of the angels. The true penitent is profoundly impressed with the realization of depravity, guilt, and danger as connected with a sinful life. This is accompanied by a sincere desire to do God's will, and an agony of solicitude for deliverance from sin's power, pollution, and results. Such anxiety impels the penitent to look to Christ in the exercise of faith, and that look of faith wins pardon and transformation of will.

Repentance becomes transformed into holiness. The image of Christ is restored to the soul or spirit. Christ is formed in the heart. And as they behold this new victory of the Redeemer, as they see the Father clothing the ragged and long-absent child with the best robes of pardon and purity, they are swept by emotions of congratulations and delight.

2. Because the moral character of a sinner's influence is forever changed by his regeneration. Every human being has influence. It is inseparable from existence. Its effects are as penetrating as ointment. Its presence is as manifest in every life as the heaven that swells the meal.

Each moral action and utterance is linked to a chain of sequences no mortal can foretell. Each is a vast whispering gallery, where words and actions live on and ring forever.

Scientists tell us that the words spoken by Abraham and Elijah are still influencing the air; that the atmosphere is a mighty library, on whose pages human actions and utterances have all been impressed. Influence is born with us like fire in flint. It walks with us, flashes from the eyes, and radiates from us like light from the sun. Influence is posthumous; and of an evil man like the fallen Abel, it may be said, "He being dead yet speaketh."

Who can measure the destructive influence of a fascinating, brilliant, cultured bad man? Hecatombs of souls have fallen over Voltaire's polished shafts of infidelity; think of the evil influence that has rolled from the writings of Hume and Hobbs.

Now, angels see this influence destroyed and a holy influence taking its place in a sinner's repentance and conversion. Study the life work and try to cast up the influence of such men as Paul, Peter, John Newton, once the dissipated English sailor, Francis Murphy, John B. Gough, and a host of men who have been instrumental in saving thousands and made converts centers of future moral power. When the angels witness a repentance that inaugurates a magnetic and positive holy disposition, it is no wonder they strike their harps with new vigor and exhibit joy in the presence of God. Another case of this ecstasy is that—

REV. S. C. SWINNEY.

Born in Columbia county, Arkansas, July 19th, 1887. Entered the gospel ministry March, 1910. Ordained to the full work of the ministry March 1911. Received his theological training in Ouchita Baptist College. Now pastor of the Hondo Baptist Church, Hondo, Texas.

3. By repentance and regeneration a sinner escapes eternal retribution for his sins, and secures moral fitness for eternal life through Christ. Unrepentant, he is condemned already. Doomed to exile from God for unbelief, "he shall not see life, for the wrath of God abideth upon him." Jesus said of unrepentant sinners, "these shall go away into everlasting punishment."

The angels know where and what hell is. Pollock and Milton, Cowley and Ford, have written harrowing verses descriptive of perdition, but in their thrilling poetry speculation has played a large part. The angels know the location and elements of retribution that enter into an experience of the second death.

The mole never opens its eyes until it is dying, then it looks out. So is it with men who deny the existence of hell—men who sneer at the graphic descriptions of anguish that Jesus announced. Francis Spira, the Italian apostate, declaimed against retribution beyond the grave but death opened his mortal eyes and he cried, "God hardens me and allows me no hope." Francis Newport taught the blasphemies that Ingersoll reshaped for mercenary ends; but Death shook the scales off his spiritual eyes and he cried, "Oh, the insufferable pains of hell!" The brilliant Altamont taught men that the hell of Revelation was a priestly scarecrow, but Death put before his inner orb a telescope, and as he peered through it, he exclaimed, "And there yet another hell?" O, thou blasphemed yet indulgent God, hell itself will be a refuge if it shall hide me from thy frown." As the angels look on a doomed sinner escaping the destiny of perdition, eluding the "lake that burneth," avoiding the imperishable consequences of sin and securing the spiritual fitness for angelic companionship, with the necessary and exclusive qualification for eternal life, they rejoice with "joy unspeakable and full of glory." Such an event is worthy of their rapture. Beautifully did the poet sing:

"Ready for you the angels wait,
To triumph in your blest estate,
Tuning their harps, they long to praise
The wonders of redeeming Grace."

3. What lessons do we learn from these facts? We learn that—

1. We manifest the spirit of the angelic race when we labor to lead sinners to Christ and rejoice over their conversion. Not in the text only, but through the whole Bible the benevolent interest of the angels in the salvation of sinners is illustrated. They directed Peter to the penitent Cornelius. They desired to look into the mysteries of redemption. They are to gather the elect in the first resurrection. They are to swell the anthems of the blood-washed forever.

God calls us to the work of leading sinners to Christ. Inspiration tells us that "he who converteth a sinner from the error of his way, shall save a soul from death, and hide a multitude of sins." God saves men through human agency. Men perish through human neglect of duty. See the apostles as they toil for souls. Over Syrian deserts, through the storms of the sea, in pestilential climes, amid hunger and thirst, and persecution they hurried to tell dying men of Jesus. And multitudes yearning for souls have trodden in their footsteps.

Brainerd and Elliott, Latimer and Baxter, Berridge and Venn, White and Edwards, Judson and Carey—how these have talked with seraph tongues, and labored with apologetic zeal for Christ. Were all the churches thus consecrated to the salvation of men the revivals in our town would inaugurate that colossal concert of angels at which John represents them as leading, and universal humanity thundering the chorus, "Worthy is the Lamb, that was slain to receive honor, glory, and blessing" and every creature which is in heaven and on the earth I heard say, "Blessing honor and glory, and power be unto Him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb forever and ever." We learn that—

2. The preaching with which the angels sympathize is of that type best calculated to bring sinners to Christ, viz: God's Book Only.

The world needs to hear less about atheism, pantheism, naturalism, spiritualism, rationalism, and more about God's invitation to dying men. The angels of God are pleased when God's Anointed press home the cardinal doctrines of Christianity, and make oratory, rhetoric, and culture but the attractive frame in which they may more conspicuously present Jesus as the central picture before the people. The angels are pleased when argument and illustration become finger-boards pointing the perishing to Calvary and crying, "Behold the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world." The angels rejoice when sermons glow with sympathetic realizations of the dangers engirdling the unsaved, and when ministers look upon scholarship and oratory, "as sounding brass, and a tinkling cymbal" compared with the attractions of the cross.

Then we are taught—

3. The appalling peril of a sinner over whose repentance no angels have rejoiced.

Your peril, my dear unsaved man or woman, must alarm the angels of God. They know that sin has but one logical issue—Eternal Death. They thrillingly realize that, "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

Give the angels a chance today to rejoice over your repentance. They will minister to you along the checkered way of life. They will encamp as bright squadrons about you as about Stephen and Lazarus when you come to die. And they will be your holy and immortal companions when sun, moon, and stars have faded from God's arch.
